Large Cereal Export Shipments
During Month Just Passed.

MILLION BUSHELS OF OATS

Both Elevators Are Now Filled With Grain and Seven Million Bushels Will Be Sent From This Port in December—Marine Notes.

The aggregate amount of cereal exports shipped from this port during the month of November, ending today, is more than double the total shipments of grain during October of this year and greatly in excess of the amount exported during November of 1904.

The total amount of grain shipped this month was 1,232,380 bushels, while last month only 437,380 bushels were sent to foreign ports, and in the month of November of last year the aggregate of the shipments was considerably less than 1,000,000.

Following is a complete list of cereals sent out of Newport News to foreign ports this month:

Oats—1,065,000 bushels.
Corn—151,952 bushels.
Barley—51,428 bushels.
Wheat—24,000 bushels.
Total—1,232,380 bushels.
Flour—88,649 barrels.

Both of the Chesapeake & Ohio elevators are now filled with grain and shipping men say that the cereal exports for this month are only a small item to what they will be during December, January and February, when it is expected that more than seven million bushels of grain will be sent to foreign ports.

More oats are being exported now than any other grain, but it is expected that large quantities of corn will be shipped during the winter.

GOOD PLACE TO DIE

REPLIES TO BRADY'S ARTICLE

After Spending Winter and Spring in Territory of Tepic, He Thinks the "States" are Good Enough to Live in After All.

Newport News, Va.
November 22, '05.

Editor Daily Press,

Dear Sir:—
Kindly allow me room in your paper to answer an article I saw in today's issue, entitled "Field for Young Men" by Mr. John J. Brady. Mr. Brady undoubtedly had reason to be enthusiastic over the subject of business prospects in Mexico, and if the tourist with business ability would stop in one place long enough to look thoroughly into the different schemes that were presented to him, there would be much more foreign money invested in Mexico as the chances there for investments are varied and numerous. But while all Mr. Brady said was true and much more could be said of the opportunities there, Mr. Brady seemed to have only given one side of the story. It has been my pleasure also of visiting Mexico for a number of months, last winter and spring, during which time I was on the west coast in the Territory of Tepic, also at the capital of the Territory, "Tepic," mentioned by Mr. Brady as one of the mining centers.

Chances for investment arise on every hand, from a gold mine offered by a dead broke miner or prospector, to a cattle ranch of 60,000 acres, which can be bought for 25c Mex. or 12 1-2c gold an acre; rubber, banana and coffee plantations, all of which can bring 50 per cent. returns on the investment, if not that much they had better be left alone. But with all these bright prospects we have read and heard about, very little has been heard about the other side, as sickness, disease contracted, and the dozen of more poisonous insects and reptiles that make one's life miserable while there; let alone the trouble one has with the natives if he hires many. What the man in the South has to put up with when hiring negro labor is nothing compared to what he goes through with in Mexico, with the native labor. The best and only good worker in Mexico, with the Yaqui Indian, which the Mexican government is killing on sight and banishing the families to Yucatan. That subject also the outside world has only heard one side of.

But what use is a man's money if he has made big interest on it. If he doesn't live to enjoy it or if on getting out, is a physical wreck for the rest of his days and thus can't enjoy it. One's health is better than all the prospects in Mexico, if he has to sacrifice it for the returns. It is this point that I wished to bring home to any one who read Mr. Brady's remarks, and who might, for an instant, think of starting that way to seek his fortune. Be sure to go to a healthy section—this must be in the high mountains, and don't go until you are physically sound in every respect, as it doesn't take long for the climate, insects, poor food and above all, poor water to pull one's system down.

I had the pleasure of meeting a Richmond, Va. man on the steamer when returning to San Francisco in May of this year. He had been working for a Mr. Smooth, who had the contract of building the harbor works at Manzanillo, for the Mexican government. Mr. Todd was one of the assistant engineers and was on a vacation after having had an attack of the coast fever—called "Celerata" in Mexico—a light form of yellow fever. Mr. Todd told me that he had been with them three months, and out of an office force of 40, they never averaged over 6 that were able to go to work any morning. During his stay six had died and there were few of the original men there then that were there when he arrived, all nearly having left after recovering from the fever. Our own crowd of five was hardly much more fortunate in this respect.
